NOTES OF THE WEEK,

The water will be shut off from 6 a. M. till 6 P. M. on Thursday (to-morrow.) Ler Lovers of good music are promised a treat at the Concert of Mrs. Robinson, which takes place resterday, will be attended from St. Andrew's Church, at 10 o'clock this day.

The Regular Monthly meeting of Honolula Royal Arch Chapter No. I will be held at its hall to morrow (Thursday) evening at 734 o'clock. Important business. Visiting brethren cordially in-Accident.-On Saturday evening last, a foreiger, while sleeping on a beach on a verandeh of a dwelling in Maunukea street, rolled off and fell to the ground, a distance of at least fifteen feet, breaking his right hip and arm. The City of Melbourne will be due from Francisco. She is a small bout, as compared with on this conte The keed of the new schoooer has been laid by Mesras. Foster & Co., and the framework is so far advanced that it will soon be set in its place. Many of the timbers are Hawalian wood, which has een selected with care from the forests of Mani and

An owner for a letter, conveying the intelligence of a fortune left to him, is advertised for today. Don't all speak at once. Our "devil" offers to pay double the postage demanded, change his name and titles, and sak no questions, provided the letter and fortupe are passed over to him.

We understand that an entertainment will e given at the Theatre sometime during the week by the "Honolula Amateurs." The bill promises to be a very good one, and will doubtless be carried through with success. We trust that a full house will greet the debut of the ambitious young disciples of Thespis.

The weather has been oppressively sultry the past few weeks, and we are reminded that the equinox is near at hand, when, according to the almanacs, look out for rain. We certainly need a generous soaking, and however abundant it comes, it will be thankfully accepted, by denizens of the city as well as the country.

PROMOTED .- Mr. JOHN E. BOSH, an experienced and faithful printer, who has served many years in the Polynesian and Gazette establishments, has been appointed clerk of the land office, a position which his intimate knowledge of the Hawalian language 7 and translating well qualifies him. It is not often that a printer gets such a "fat take," but in this case the government secures a faithful aid, while we lost one. Still, we congratulate both the government and him on his deserved promotion.

Lef The new organ, Imported in the bark Ceyon, for the Bethel Chapel, has been set up by Mr. Macaulay the musician, and was used for the first the opening and concluding pieces, and Mr. F. W. Damon the others. It proved to be a sweet toned instrument, and most admirably adapted in sound to the building. It is what is called a Chapel organ, 13 feet 6 inches in hight; and 4 feet deep by 6 in width, and was made by Merss. Hook and Hastings of Boston. Perfect satisfaction appears to be given in every particular. Its currency cost was $1000, and for carpenters bills and other expenses in setthe and Toronto of next week, at the room of Mr. Bartow, fling it up, together with duties, about $300 more have been expended. The treight bill of $100 was generously given by C. Brewer of Boston. The Bethel Chapel was erected in 1833, and opened for service on the 30th of November of that year. It is consequently the oldest of our church edifices, and the addition of this boantiful instanent will serve to make the old chapel still more to the way to be a server of the chape of the server of the only and the Crashware from San Francisco on Tuesday or endear the old chapel still more to those who have for many years worshiped in it, and sat under the teachings of its pastor. Dr. Damon.

The funeral of the late Major Bord was atinded on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of the late Cept. Adams in Hotel street, opposite Dr. M'Grew's. Rev. H. H. Parker, who had attended the deceased during his last illness officiated on the occasion, and made a very feeling address to those present. At about four o'clock the coffin, which was so unusally cisborate one, wa placed on the hearse, and the procession moved to $ the Nausnn Cometery, where the remains were de-Since, Lorenge very from Takin, then Windward Ports.

The streets through which it passed were lined with speciators. Besides this funeral there were three others the same atternoon, and the returning processions passed others bound to the burial grounds. The scene was one not often witnessed in Honolalu, and added to the solemnity and sorrow which pervaded the city. We understand that Morras Strebr, Harbottle and W. HONOLULU, Sept. 14, 1875, Mr. Epiron: I hear a good deal of talk about town, of the great necessity of a new steamer, to be large and commodious, to take the place of the steam coaster Kilanea, Now I would inquire, why all this stir? why the great urgency in the premises? Is business increasing so much, that emigrants arriving here, cannot get accommodation between the Islands, or that the leading merchants cannot get their merchandise transported, or that the Plantation agents, do not receive their orders, specially cash, with as much regularity as they desire, or are a few interested parties (inside the ring) desirous of manipulating an sterprise of this kind, or has the Government me to the conclusion after the varied experience they have had with the steam on Kilamea that the coasting business is profitable and we will freeze out the sailing coasters, who employ some 300 men, and disburse annually ne $65,000 for wages, license, lights, water,

It looks to me at the present time, with the sad decrease of our population, and the depressed state of business in every stape, and nothing to look ahead to but Beriprocity, and that somewhat doubtful, that the building of a new steamer is Alexandra's Garden Party.

On July 5th, the Princess of Wales gave a magnificent garden-party at Chiswick. The road, and under the fruit trees of the avenue The funeral of Mrs. Merrill's son, who died | leading to the grounds. We happened along about that time, and "lest our neighbors should think us proud," left our one-horse chariot outside and walked into the avenue, mingling freely with the populace under the trees, and looking with the mild interest of American sovereigns on the princely and aristocratic display. It was in truth a magnificent, wonderful show-splendid equipages and exquisite summer toilets in dazzling and almost interminable succession. It gave me an overwhelm ing realization of the wealth, the refinement and boundless laxury of that great upper world of England, fixed by immemorial privilege above the mutations of ordinary fortune and the fluctations of vulgar trade. We watched them driving in till we absolutely grew weary of grandour. The Prince and Princess of Wales drove past early, on "hospitable thoughts intent." The Prince is ruddy and somewhat portly,- not the proper and handsome man, that model of deportment, his father was,-but a good fellow, and very popular now, especially with the people. The Princess is rather thin for perfect beauty, but > most graceful and gracious, and is remarkable for her faultless taste in dress. The most splendid and dashing equipage we saw was that of the Duke of Sutherland; but the joillest affairs of all were the drugs. Nearly all these famous four-in-hand turnouts, these old-fashioned stage coaches gloriously resurrected, were there, every seat filled with gallant young lords, or lovely young ladies, or dainty and demure footmen with tightlyfolded arms-all, especially the latter, looking prond and triumphant, immeasureably exalted above the gazing and admiring pedestrians along their way. It is all very grand sport, doubtless, but rather tame after all. I should prefer that sort of amusement flavored with a little adventure. Give me rather a seat with the driver on a Rocky Mountain stage coach-six fast borses, full speed, on the down grade. This, after all, is only dilettante driving. The Queen was expected with the rest, but she chose to come in by a tack way from the Chiswick station, and so disappointed a multitude of her station, and so disappointed a multitude of her loyal subjects, hungry for a sight of her pleasant motherly face. Hearing that she was to leave for Windsor at 7, the knowing ones which included our party, of course, drove round to the station and there had a very satisfactory view of her and the Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold. I am happy to say that photography is no courtier, and that no Guelph gains by it. In a few days her Malesty moves on to Osborne, and from thence back to Balmoral, most blessed and beloved retreat. Some of the Oneen's subjects righe parainst this absenteeof the Queen's subjects robel against this absentee-ism, this resolute flinging off of the pomp and circumstance of glorious royalty; but we hear from one who has the best opportunity of knowing the facts that this is the only course of life by which her Majesty can preserve her health and strength, so as fitly to discharge her purely official duties. These site has never neglected, not even in times of prolonndest sorrow. Doubtless her life in the heart of the Highlands, quiet, simple, natural, surrounded by a loyal but self-respecting people, is more to her taste than ever was the life of courts and the servile adulation of palace flunkles. She is a woman of adiation of palace flunkies. She is a woman of shrewd sense and simple tastes, loving independence and sincerity—above all, loving love. I have lately heard, as coming from one of her former ladies in waiting, a touching little story, which flustrates the tender, domestic nature of the woman. When Prince Albert died, so soon after her mother, in the first hour of her bereavement, and out of the depths of her desolute widowhood and queenhood, she cried, "There is no one left now to call me Victoria."
